William Sneyd, the scholar here entered, born on the 5th September 1767, was a lieutenant in the eighty-eighth regiment of foot, but retired on half-pay in 1783, and was on the half-pay list to the time of his death, being one of the oldest officers in the British army when he died in 1851. He was for many years a deputy-lieutenant and in the commission of the peace for Staffordshire, and for some time colonel of the Stone and Sandon volunteers. Ho married, in 1796, Mary, daughter and heiress of Simon Debank, esq., of the Ashes; and on the death of her father he built the house at Ashcombe park, the residence of the eldest surviving son, the Rev. John Sneyd, M.A., J.P., who, with three of his brothers, graduated at Brasenose college, Oxford. William Sneyd is buried at Ipstones. On the south wall of the church, near the family pew, is a monument bearing an inscription as follows : Hic juxta sepultas jacent reliquise Gulielmi Sneyd De Ashcombe, in Agro Staffordiensi, Armigeri. ViUe integritate Et morum suavitate Ornatissimus Obiit 20 Kal. Feb. 1851. Anno AEtatis 84.
At Ashcombe, where he resided, is a mansion built upon the site of an old manor house, formerly called Bolton hall, and the property of the Jollifies, who had an extensive estate in the parish of Cheddleton in the moorlands.
